Striking a New Note: Canadian Violin Virtuoso Rosemary Siemens Scores a Guest Spot on the Food Network's Series Premiere of "Chef in Your Ear"

Vancouver August 24, 2015 - Canadian violin sensation Rosemary Siemens - the first Violinist to EVER play at the Sistine Chapel at the Vatican shows a different side - being clueless in the kitchen on Food Network's brand new show Chef in Your Ear. Rosemary will be featured on the series premiere August 31 at 10pm ET/PT.

This Fall on Food Network Canada, culinary masters are pairing with clueless cooks to see who can create the best restaurant quality dishes in the new original Canadian series Chef in Your Ear.

Vancouver violinist Rosemary Siemens hails from Plum Coulee Manitoba and has had a lot of incredible experiences, from serenading Donald Trump at his Mar-A-Lago home in Palm Beach to performing 4 times at Carnegie Hall, one of them being the debut of two styles meeting - Classical and Hip Hop, to playing a private party at Kevin O'Leary's house in Toronto and getting stomped in with her best friend Mary Ziba... Rosemary is always experiencing a new adventure, but this was something completely different.... As introduced on the show "Rosemary Siemens concert violinist who goes grocery shopping once a year" is completely Clueless in the Kitchen. Making sausages from scratch, on a time limit... Nothing could help, not even her Manitoba Mennonite farm roots and mom's amazing culinary skills. With Rosemary's signature laugh, she literally screams her way through stress.

*In this thrilling culinary competition, two of the country's hottest chefs face off to see who can get a completely clueless cook to create the best restaurant quality dish in only one hour. The catch? The chefs never step foot in the kitchen. Isolated in a remote booth, each chef watches their cook on a monitor, guiding them step-by-step through an earpiece. The final plates are judged and the winning chef determines the losing chef's punishment. It's ego against ego and dish against dish in Chef in Your Ear!*
